PREFACE.

SINCE writing the following pages I have been enabled, through the kindness of Mr. Denzil Ibbetson, C.S., Deputy Commissioner of the Panjab Census of 1881, to obtain the whole of the Census Records of the Ambâlâ Cantonments in 72 vols., MSS., in the Persian character, and also 2 vols. of the Records of each District of the Panjab, or 64 vols. more, in all 136 volumes. I had previously in my possession 17 other vols, of the Ambâlâ District Records, so that I have now 153 volumes of material to work on. Each of the District sets consists of the record of one village and one town block, so they contain between them the names of the rustic and urban populations of all parts of the Panjab. As each volume contains on an average 500 names, the total number of names at my disposal now for investigation is about 75,000, and it is clear from this fact that if ever the leisure should accrue to investigate all this mass of material the question of modern Panjabî human nomenclature should be finally set at rest.

The work of investigation, however, as represented in the pages of this little book, should be looked on as merely in its infancy, for I have been enabled so far to consider, in addition to my private collection, only those names to be found in 5 of the Ambâlâ Census volumes. There is, besides, on every point raised in this dissertation a large quantity of undigested material, not very difficult of access, to be found scattered over the Panjâb, but want of leisure has prevented me from including it.

I see my way to a thorough investigation of the material already collected, but cannot say, even approximately, when the work is likely to be completed; and since the collation of the comparatively small number of names already examined, seemed to give preliminary results on all points connected with them, except that of the spread and local distribution of names, I have thought it best to publish what has been already accomplished, than to wait on indefinitely for an opportunity of doing more; especially as, for all I know to the contrary, no researches have as yet been made into modern Indian Aryan nomenclature, and therefore nearly all my information is new to scholars.

This is my excuse for making public the results of an avowedly incomplete study of the subject.

My thanks and acknowledgments are due to my friends Messrs. Denzil Ibbetson, C.S., and William Crooke, C.S., for kindly aid rendered me throughout, to Shibbû, formerly Mîr Munshî of the 63rd Regt., to Faizu'llah Khân, Mîr Munshî of the 9th Lancers, and to Dârogha Chainâ Mall, of Ambâlâ, for the intelligent manner in which they procured and gave me the information I required of them, and also to the Government of the Panjâb for the generous support which has enabled me to risk the publication of my manuscript.

I would add that my reason for inserting such long lists and tables of names into the body of this book is that in the present stage of the investigation they are necessary: facts being now more valuable than theories.

CHAPTER I.

It has long been recognised in Europe that the proper names of men and women are well worth study for the sake of the indications they give of the national life, the racial history and the course of civilization of those that have invented them. The subject has been deeply examined on its many sides, archeological, antiquarian, literary, historical, philological and ethnological, and is still being vigorously prosecuted. Even in the last number of the Journal of the English Anthropological Institute to hand,* is an enquiry by Dr. Beddoe, F.R.S., into Hinglish surnames with a view to ascertaining the racial components of the modern English nation and their numerical relation to each other. In India, however, as far as I am aware, the subject is still untouched, and its students must, therefore, if I am right in this assumption, begin at the beginning with the result of being very restricted at first in their field of research. The title of this dissertation has, for this reason. been purposely chosen in order to show the exact scope of the present enquiry. In a large country like that geographically known as the Panjab, with its arbitrary political boundaries containing within them many tribes, races and peoples, who have at least three chief religions, what is true of one portion is not necessarily so of another. Remarks and observations applicable to the East may not be so to the West or South, and in the title it is said that the remarks herein relate especially to the Eastern Panjab, because the data on which they are based were mostly gathered in the Ambâlâ District and neighbourhood, where the Hindû element largely predominates, and, because, though the facts to be there observed are also more than probably true in the main of all those portions of India chiefly influenced by the Aryan races and the Aryan religions, it would be premature to hold, without precise data to go upon, that they are so of, say, the Western Panjâb, where the Muhammadan religion and foreign influences are so powerful. It has been further noticed that the more educated and civilized urban populations, speaking the Hindî language in the widest application of that term, bear names that differ widely from those of villagers. I am far from being prepared to say that this is an absolute fact, but since it may be so, and as my observations extended only to village populations, the title of the present work was further restricted, as having special reference to the names of villagers.

It may be here remarked that a careful examination of the proper names to be found in the Census Returns of the great Cantonments of Ambâlâ and Merath (Meerut), would give most valuable general results, because there are collected together large heterogeneous populations of all sorts from every part of Aryan India, Pûrbiâ and Panjâbî, Hindû and Musalmân, Sikh and Jain, high and low, polished and uncouth, urban and rustic, and there, too, flourishes the innumerable Śūdra, in all his endless variety. chief value of examining their names would be that the spread over India of the phenomena to be observed would be sufficiently well ascertained to form at any rate a good basis for future investigation. It should be remarked, also, that many of the assertions made herein are based merely on the limited enquiry that I have been so far able to make, and that, therefore, strictly speaking they are tentative. Their correctness could only be really tested from an extended examination of proper names, and this could probably be most satisfactorily done by collating a percentage of the names to be found in the Census Returns of 1881, say, 1000 names from each District in the Panjab. The data thus acquired would be genuine in themselves, and be sufficient to prove all that would require proof.

The facts, on which the present observations are based, are in two sets:—

Firstly.—Through the kind offices of Mr. Ibbetson, C.S., Deputy Commissioner of the Census, Panjab, the Census Returns (in 17 vols., MSS., Persian character) of the villages of Bibiâl, Gadaulî, Khârwan, Isma'îlâbâd and Rattewâlî, in the Ambâlâ District, were handed over to me for examination. They contain the names of some 10,000 persons, and the villages were purposely selected as representing fairly the whole District rustic population. These names, then, are as genuine as they can be made, but I have not had time unfortunately to examine more than five of the volumes, containing only the names of 2,846 persons.

Secondly.—Some time previous to the collation of these MSS., I had been collecting the names of Hindûs, with a view to finding out anything 1 could about them, and had got together a small collection thus of 1,133 names.

The results of the researches have been compiled into two tables, with a view to showing as regards the first set, the frequency with which each name occurred, and in what castes or classes of Hindûs and Musalmans it was to be found, and how often. The names were divided into male and female, and sub-divided into Hindû and Musalman. The male names had a further sub-division into "children," to ascertain the trath of a fact often asserted to me that Hindû male children's names differed from those of male adults. This, I think, it is now safe to say is emphatically not the case. The table of the second set is designed to show the derivation, form and meaning of Hindû names, and the 1,133 names are therefore grouped into 186 sets under 21 heads to exhibit these as clearly as possible. Under "Form," the names are divided into Male. Female and Diminutive, and the Male into Simple and Compound. Under "Sense," they are divided into Literal and Applied. It cannot be pretended that this table is as satisfactory as the first, owing to the unavoidable uncertainty of private enquiry, but all was done that could be done to enter up only such names as are actually known to exist. Possible and legitimate forms were not received, simply because it is more than likely that somewhere or other they are in use.

I give here a list of the castes in which the 1,000 Ambâlâ village names are to be found distributed, which shows that the table represents the names of persons of all the ordinary Eastern Panjâbî gradations of village society, though it does not in itself pretend to be anything more than a compilation of the caste names that the people gave themselves at the Census:—

CHAPTER II.

THE primary object of all human nomenclature is, of course, to distinguish individuals, and to this object every system of naming has been mainly directed, but, owing to their infinite numbers wherever human beings congregate, this object is not so easy to attain as one would at first sight suppose. The difficulty of devising names, which shall be really distinguishing, is very early felt in every community, and many are the expedients adopted in the world to overcome it. None can be called really successful, except perhaps the Dravidian system of adding to a man's name, that of his village and district, or home. The modern European system of surnames is only moderately successful, as may be gathered from any list of names one may chance on. E.q., even in a Regiment such a name as "John Smith of B Company," often fails to finally distinguish a man, and "John Smith" of any hamlet one is likely to mention would be nearly sure to fail to do so. In India, where surnames are practically unknown, names of men and women so conspicuously fail to finally distinguish them, that it is necessary to add the parental and caste names, and even then, until the age is superadded, only doubtful success is attained. Bad, however, as the Indian Aryan method of nomenclature is, it is so far better than the Muhammadan, (in which a vain attempt was originally made to ring the changes only on the names of the saintly founders of their religion, and on the so-called 99 names of God,* leading to most fantastic results), that the Musalmans have practically adopted it in India. This, I think, the tables conclusively show.

The first point, then, that comes under consideration in examining these Panjâbî names, is to ascertain what attempts to attain the object of distinguishing individuals are visible therein.

* The "99 names of God" have existed apparently only in the imaginations of European writers. The "Most Comely Names of God" are of an indefinite number in reality. Mr. Redhouse, Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society, vol. XII., N.S., pp. 1-69, gives a list of 552, and there are doubtless many more to be found up and down the Qurán.

Now, the first thing to notice is, that in the Census table 2,846 persons bear between them 1,067 separate names, or, in other words, each name does not on an average occur 3 times in 3.000 persons. These names were taken about 570 each from 5 villages, and it is possible that so great a variety would not be proportionally maintained if the whole 10,000 names of the said villages were fully examined, but I am persuaded that it would not be very materially diminished. Out of these 1,067 names only 148, or 14 per cent., occurred 5 times and upwards, while not a single name reached an average occurrence of one per cent. in the population; the nearest approaches being Jîwanî, Nârâyanî and Shibbî, 28 times each, and Nathû, 27 times. On the other hand, 53 per cent., or more than half, occurred but once. The following is a list of the names occurring more than 5 times, and is given as an indication of what names are commoner than usual :--

The fact then has become patent that the Panjabis attain individuality of nomenclature by an enormous variety of names. greatness of this variety may be illustrated by the fact, that my lists of 2,000 odd names by no means include even all those of my servants, public or private, or of the natives about me, or of my native acquaintances. It exists everywhere, and in all classes of society. Thus, in a list of 77 eminent persons exempted in 1881 in the Panjab from attending the Civil Courts, only 5 names occur more than once and none more than twice. Even these are easily distinguishable, as Mîân Suchet Singh, Râmgarhiâ and Kanwar Suchet Singh, Ahlûwâlia. Also, in a list of legal practitioners for the Panjab for 1881, out of 231 names only 18 occur more than once; of these two only, Kanhâyâ Lâl and Gopâl Dâs, occur more than 4 times, and two only, Karam Chand and Mâyâ Dâs, occur 3 times. Lastly, the names of the various Municipal Commissioners for the Panjab for 1881 are interesting, as showing the same results. Thus, in Siâlkot of 45 names, in Jhang of 20, in Gurgâon of 62, in Muzaffargarh of 27 and in Kângrâ of 33, all differ from each other. In Derâ Ghâzî Khân out of 50 names, only one occurs twice. In Ambâlâ out of 60 names one occurs twice and one thrice, and out of 149 names in Hissâr, three occur twice and one three times.*

Let us now see how these many variations are arrived at. A glance at the tables shows that it is done by varying the terminations of the words, and adding to the words so varied certain complements. Keeping this fact in view, it was found that in the second list 1,133 names could be arranged under 186 groups of words having a common derivation, i.e., each name had six varieties, but I feel pretty sure that this number understates the actual amount of the varieties to be found existing in every-day life. In the 1,000 names of the first list each root word gives rise on an average to three derivatives, the proportion being kept down by such purely religious names as Arjânand, Bhagrathî, Bhawânî, Bishambar, 'Âtâ

Muhammad and so on, which cannot well occur more than once. Some words in the list have many more derivatives, as bir, warrior, which is found in 11 names. It should be borne in mind that, however closely related to its congeners, each variety can safely designate a separate individual, and for practical purposes is a separate name. E.g., Nathâ, Nathâ, Nathû, Nathû, Nathô, Nathân, Nathan, Nathî Râm, Nathû Mall, Nathâ Singh, Nathû Rai, could all easily be made to stand for really distinct personages, just as Mary, Minnie, Marie, Moll, Molly and Miriam could legitimately give names to different girls in England.

These terminations of names may be divided into Male, Female and Male Diminutive. Theoretically these last should be applied only to children; as a matter of fact, however, they are not so restricted.

The Male terminations areâ, e; î; iâ; û, ûn, wâ.

an and o also occur, but under exceptional circumstances.

The Female terminations are-o, on; ân; iâ; î, vî; an, nî; â; rî.

Exceptionally also û. Muhammadan names have besides a.

The Male Diminutive terminations areû, ûn ; nû, nûn ; rû.

In order to trace out the reasons for the existence of the various terminations and the relation they bear to each other, cases where male, female and diminutive names from the same roots were found to exist side by side have been compared, and the results tabulated into eleven groups of terminations. Thus—

This table shows that â, î and iâ, with the diminutive û, are the main masculine terminations, and that the main feminine terminations are o, âù, an, î, iâ, nî and â.

Of the feminine terminations o, an, an and no are distinctively so, i.e., a name ending in any of these would always be feminine, except under exceptional circumstances.

Of the others I look on the masculine e as an inflected form, since it occurs mainly in conjunction with complementary additions; e.g., Kachhwâ = Kachhwe Râm, Chhâpâ = Chhâpe Singh, but Dûle and Nanhe occur as simple names.*

The masculine ûn and wâ spring from the diminutive û, as also do the feminine wî or vî; e.g., Bîr, Bîrâ, Bîrû, Bîrwî (or Bîrvî); Nathâ, Nathû, Nathwâ (or Nathuâ). Similarly the feminine on comes from o.

The feminine iâ is a diminutive form, as in Burhiâ, Chiriâ, Hiriâ. So also is the feminine rî (arî). Other true diminutives, masculine, are rû (arû) and also nû (anû) and nûn (anûn), which latter are derived from the old nominal terminations an and anî (nî).

When o and û occur respectively as masculine and feminine terminations the cases are quite exceptional, as, masculine, Sîto, Lîkho; feminine, Sîtû, Mâltû, Dhûmû.

To go into the derivation of these name terminations. An ordinary Hindi masculine termination of nouns is â, with î for its corresponding feminine termination. From the tables it will be seen that many masculine names in â have corresponding feminine names in î. It seems, therefore, a fair derivation for these to say that they follow the usual Hindi custom. Likewise, also, the feminine terminations an and nî may be looked on as regular formations, these being common in the language as feminine noun terminations.

The derivation of the name terminations â and î must be looked for in the respectively masculine and feminine Sanskrit and Prâkrit terminations aka and ikâ, from which last also comes the rarer feminine name termination â. Similarly, also, the rare feminine name termination û may be explained as a relic of the Sanskrit ukâ. For the feminine an and nî (anî) we must go to the Sanskrit masculine in with feminine inî.*

The diminutive termination  $\hat{\mathbf{u}}$ , and hence  $\hat{\mathbf{u}}$  (anû), may be taken as derived from the Sanskrit diminutive termination aka, through Prâkritic elision of the k and substitution of v. In the same way springs the masculine termination wâ (uâ), and the feminine vî or wî. All these are really diminutive forms. The feminine iâ is a direct diminutive formed similarly from the Sanskrit aka, though Prâkritic elision of k and insertion of y, in place of v, affecting the preceding short vowel.

The name terminations, feminine  $\hat{r}$  and diminutive  $\hat{r}$ , I would look on as also being true diminutive forms, though the Sanskrit diminutives in r.

The masculine i may represent the Sanskrit in or perhaps iya.

The masculine in should be perhaps looked on as adjectival, and as representing the Sanskit adjectival termination ika.

The terminations on, ûn, nûn should be explained as nasalizations of o, û, nû, and may be relies of old case endings.

The feminine name terminations o and an have baffled my endeavours. As name terminations they are distinctively feminine, but as the terminations of nouns they are, as far as I know, throughout the Hindi dialects and languages distinctively masculine, and only feminine exceptionally.

There remains but the Arabic feminine termination a, the at of pure Arabic, to be found in such purely Muhammadan names as 'Azima, 'Azîma, Halîma, 'Uzma, Habîba, 'Âesha and so on.

The table of terminations shows that sometimes â and î and rarely an occur as terminations of corresponding masculine and feminine names; and this, too, as a matter of fact, happens in a very small percentage, not two per cent., of cases. Usually masculine and ferminine names from the same root differ in form, as—

Masculine.Feminine.BakhshâBakhshanBholâBholîChandîChandoChhotûChhotî

The distinction between masculine and feminine names is, therefore, much more clearly marked in every-day life by their form than one would at first imagine.

The terminations of names when compounded with their complements vary slightly and generally arbitrarily, but in so doing they do not exhibit anything beyond the usual amount of the apparently arbitrary variation incidental to the details of all human speech, the natural outcome of habits that have grown with time. Examples are—

Lakkhâ : Lakkhî Râm, Lakkhâ Singh, Lakkhâ Mall. Langrâ : Langrâ Singh, Langrâ Mall, Langar Lâl.

Likhârî: Likhârâ Singh, Likhârî Mall.

Nîmâ: Nîm Singh, Nîmâ Mall.

Pahârî: Pahârî Lâl, Pahârî Râm, Pahârâ Singh, Pahârî Singh, Pahârâ Mall.

From the above remarks it will be seen, then, that given a root word for a name many forms can spring from it without even going into the complementary additions to be noted hereafter, and it is shown from the Census papers that each of these forms is looked on as a separate proper name. Let us take the word nath, a very common root, and we can legitimately make from it:—

Masculine names: Nathâ, Nathî, Nathe, Nathwâ, Nathiâ, Nathan, Nathû, Nathûn.

Feminine names: Nathâ, Nathî, Natho, Nathwî, Nathan, Nathân, Nathnî, Nathon.

Diminutive names: Nathû, Nathûn, Nathnûn. Nathnûn.

Of the above, Nathi as a maculine name would not ordinarily occur, nor would Natha and Nathan be found ordinarily as feminine names. We may further eliminate the diminutive forms Nathû and Nathûn as superfluous, and so get at a residuum of 13 separate names derived from this one source without the help of additions, of which, say, Singh, Mall, Lâl and Râm would be readily, and probably somewhere or other are in reality, added to each of the masculine forms Nathâ, Nathî, Nathe, Nathiâ and Nathû, giving us 20 forms more, or altogether 33. Again by lengthening the a in nath and making it nath we get another 33 forms, and the tables show that the changes on nath and nath are thus actually rung in every-day life. This gives us 66 derivatives from this one word alone to serve as distinguishing appellations of men and women, and from this something is seen of the process by which the infinite variety of Indian proper names is arrived at, though it should not be inferred that all the possible forms a root name could take are in actual use.

Frequent allusions have already been made to the complementary additions attached to simple names. These appear to have had originally a religious meaning. I am told, too, that they were used formerly to distinguish high-caste from low-caste Hindûs. E.q. Râm and Lâl as complementary additions distinguished Brâhmans, Singh was the sign of the Kshatriyas, and Mall, Rai and Lâl of the Vaisyas, while the despised Sûdras were not permitted to use any such distinctive mark. I cannot find that in modern times in village communities their presence, form, or absence signifies any thing, except that it is considered grander to have a name like Shivdiâl, than to be called plain Shibbû; but such instances mean no more than the "grand names" our own lower classes are now so fond of do in England. The Rai Kanwar or the Har Devî of the Indian village finds her exact counterpart in the Zuleika or the Letitia of the English hamlet. The half-educated writers, with whom we surround ourselves in our Courts, are very fond of these "full names" as they would call them, and very much so are the police clerks, with the result that the nomenclature of the people exhibited in our Court records is far from correct. A little careful attention to what is said in a case will show that Prisoner 'Ali Nawaz Khan of the police report is the 'Alia of the evidence, and that the Witnesses Govardhan Dâs and Durgâ Parkâsh are known as Gobra and Durga to their friends, and I would remark that 'Aliâ, Gobrâ and Durgâ are the real names of these worthies, the grander ones being used merely for the occasion. Our clerks are apt to mislead us in this respect from the same motives as lead them to turn the Brâhmanical title Misar into the Arabic name for Egypt, and to write the thoroughly Indian word nata, relationship, as if it had been imported from Persia. I remember, moreover, a case in which a notorious criminal, who was known as Sharfu'd-dîn, throughout the investigations into his crimes from the Magistrate's enquiry to the Chief Court's final decision on appeal, being quite unknown by that name in his own village, but any of his acquaintances could have told one all about Sharfû, the highwayman. Lately, too, a lad of respectability was brought before me for theft, whose name appeared in the record as Murtaza' Khân, but who was known to the witnesses throughout the trial as Mujjan, and a police constable of the Ambâlâ Cantonment turns up in evidence sometimes as Mîrû, but oftener as Amîru'd-dîn.

The more usual masculine complementary forms are the following:—

Ånand	Delight	Dhan	Prosperity
Bans	Posterity	$\mathbf{Dhar}$	Support
Bhagat	Saint	Dîâ	Granted
Bhân	Beloved	Diâl	Kind
Bîr	Warrior	Dîn	Servant

Râm	God	Sarûp	Beauty
Rão	Prince	$\mathbf{Sen}$	Commander
Ratan	Jewel	Singh	Lion
Rath	Chariot	Sukh	$\mathbf{Delight}$

Of the above Ânand, Bans, Dayyâ, Dîâ, Jas, Jî, Saran, Sarûp, Sukh are often incorporated into the names they qualify. E.g., Râjânand, Harbans, Râmdayyâ, Shibdîâ, Harjas, Lâljî, Râmsaran, Harsarûp, Râmsukh.

The feminine complementary forms are-

Dâî	Granted	Kanwar	Princess
Deî	Granted	$\mathbf{K}$ aur	Princess
Devî	Goddess	$\mathbf{Kor}$	Princess
Dî	Granted	Rakhî	Preserved
Gyânî	Knowledge

The Muhammadan word Bakhsh,* Granted, is used as a complement to Hindû names, as Râm Bakhsh, Devî Bakhsh, Gur Bakhsh. Shâh, King, (Muhammadan word), in mistake for Sâh, Merchant, (Hindû word), is added to Merchants' names, as Sohan Shâh, Sawâyyâ Shâh, which should be Sohan Sâh, Sawâyyâ Sâh. I have also met with the Muhammadan word Ghulâm, Slave, thus used; Râm Ghulâm, Shiv Ghulâm: which is another instance of the curious mixture of Hindû and Musalmân words, so common in the names of Musalmâns, but rare in the names of Hindûs.

Complementary additions are common to Muhammadan names also, but in their case the origin appears to be in the necessity for distinguishing individuals by more than one name, which soon arose from the very limited supply of proper names even in Arabia itself, and to have no derivation in the prevailing Hindû custom.

It is well known that the Indian Muhammadans divide themselves into four main tribes, viz., Sayyids, Shekhs, Mughals and Pathâns, and that all converts, "Nae Musallim," are included in the designation Shekh. Properly speaking each tribe has its own distinguishing complements, but even in educated society these are not adhered to, and such adherence cannot be expected among the Musalmân Panjâbî villagers, the vast majority of whom are Hindûs or aboriginal tribes, forcibly converted wholesale to Muhammadanism, and who are still Hinduized at heart. These complements are here given by tribes, it being understood that they are so distributed only in theory, and that all are not in common use.

Of the above 'Abd, Âghâ, Âqâ, Ghulâm, Mîr, Sayyid and Shekh are used as prefixes, not as suffixes, like the rest. Thus, 'Abdu'-llah, Âghâ Jân, Âqâ Muḥammad, Ghulâm Nabbî, Mîr 'Ali, Sayyid 'Abdu's-Sattâr, Shekh 'Abdu'l-Qâdir, but Muḥammad Shâh, Hassan Bâno and so on.

A glance at the table of names of Hindûs and Musalmâns shows that these are not confined to any particular caste or calling, but that, however much Munshûs and the literati may assert to the contrary, Brâhmans and Chammârs, Sayyids and Doms are named alike in practise. The only difference to be observed in nomenclature between classes is that the more respectable and well-to-do add the regular complements, and that the villagers and poor do so comparatively seldom. Thus, in a list of native gentlemen and rich traders simple names without any title or complement are rare, whereas among my village tables these additions are found in only 19 per cent. of the names.

All observers of natives and their ways will have noticed that it is a common practise in speaking of a man to mention his caste or calling along with his proper name. Thus, Râmânand Baniyâ, Chuhrâ Tarkhân, Ḥamîd Duggar, Gopî Brâhman, Jhagra Kahâr, Niâz Dom, Ḥasna Raîn and so on. Owing to the vast variety of Indian proper names practically this custom will be found to fairly answer the purpose of distinguishing individuals, for, even when in the Census table a name occurs several times, it will be found to be distributed among the village castes.

Thus, we have the name Abelâ occurring 9 times among 7 castes in 5 villages, and it may be well understood that each of these Abelâs are readily distinguishable in the village communities. Thus—

(1) Abelâ Bâdhî.

- (6) Abelâ Chûhṛâ.
- (2) Abelâ Mâlî of Bibiâl.
- (7) Abelâ Gûjar.
- (3) Abelâ Mâlî of Gadauli.
- (8) Abelâ Chammâr of Khârwan.

(4) Abelâ Kahâr.

(9) Abelâ Chammâr of Rattewâlî

(5) Abelâ Râjpût.

So again—
(1) Bansî Lohâr.

Sometimes, however, a name seems to be a favourite in a caste, especially among Musalmans, and then confusion may occasionally arise. E.g., in the Census tables 5 Rans are called Allah Bakhsh and 5 other Rans are called Barkat, but such cases are not common. In England, too, it is not at all unusual for a particular Christian name to become common in a family or group of families, and as we all know that but little confusion arises in our own daily life from this cause, it may be easily realized that favourite names in a caste do not create much confusion where they occur in India. Here are all the instances of a name occurring over five times in a caste in the Census table—

CHAPTER III.

To turn to the derivation of Hindû names and the causes for the selection of the words used for them. These causes appear to be—

- (1) The religious aspirations of the parents;
- (2) Natural affection;
- (3) Developed peculiarities;
- (4) Special superstitions;
- (5) Special customs.

Religious names, meaning by that term those having a direct reference to religious terminology, form a very large portion of Hindâ proper names, 28 per cent. in the Census table. They appear to take their rise in the superstition that it is a "good work towards salvation," to pronounce constantly the "Name of God," (Râm Nâm or Sahasr Nâm). Naming one's child after one of the "Thousand Names of God," ensures the practice of this good work, as its name will naturally be frequently in the mouth, and hence such names as Bhagwân Devî, Râm Parshâd, Devakî Nandan, Râm Autâr, Gangâ Sahai, Gopâl Rai, Kâlî Charan, Durgâ Parkâsh, Kaliân Dâs, Bansî Lâl, Gopî Chand, Murlî Dhar, Shiv Dîal and so on.

The real religious name is usually accompanied by a suitable complement, but frequently it also assumes one of the ordinary forms, and apparently always alternatively so in familiar use. Thus, Gangâ Sahai is the same as Gangâ and Gangû, which are themselves separate masculine names with Gango and Gangî as feminine correspondents. Shiv Diâl is the same as Shebâ, Shebû, Shibbâ, Shibbû, with feminine correspondents Sebî, Sebo, Shebî, Shibbî, Sibbî; all also separate names.

This has given rise to a curious use of feminine mythological names for men,* as the Gangâ above. Similarly Kâlî, Durgâ, * Compare Maria in Europe and the modern English names Maud and Alice, which were originally masculine. The (English) Antiquary, vol. IV., on the names of women. Ferguson, Surnames as a Science, pp. 203-206.

Gaurjâ, Gaurî, Sîtâ, Devî and so on, are used as men's names, necessitating in some cases feminine complements or forms, when used for women, as Gangâ Devî, Kâlî Devî, Durgî, Gaurjî.

Another cause for this is the custom of coupling the corresponding male and female deities in men's names, as Lachhmî Nârâyan, Ràdhâ Kishn, Sîtâ Râm, Gaurî Shankar, Gangâ Bishn. In such, when the latter is treated as a complementary form, the feminine remains alone as the man's name.

Names of affection, or pet names, as may be supposed, are common enough; 21 per cent. in the Census table. Such are Sukhdarshan, beautiful to see; Phûlî Râm, flower; Sawâyyâ Singh, honoured; Sundar Lâl, handsome; Âsî, hope; Basant, spring; Ujâgar Mall, brightness.

Opprobrious names, not a numerous, but still an interesting and for the purposes of the observer of the natives, an important class also occur everywhere. They take their rise in certain interesting customs and in the superstition that by giving a child a disgusting name it will be saved from evil influences. They include most of those under the heads of special superstitions and special customs. In the Census table they form 3 per cent. of the names.

The question of opprobrious names has been somewhat extensively, but far from exhaustively, discussed by myself and others in the Indian Antiquary.* They are, however, there shown to be in universal use in India from Peshawar to Cape Comorin. The subject was first seriously started by Mr. G. A. Grierson, C.S., by a list of 37 male and 12 female opprobrious names, with the remark that they were universal in Bihar to designate children born after the death of their elder predecessors, and that such children had their noses bored. I give this list here:—

Dr. Rajendra Lâla Mitra then added from Bengal the names Bhûto, the Ugly One, and Gobardhan, Dung-made, derived from a precisely similar custom. Subsequently information came from Madras, that in Southern India opprobrious names were common to all classes of natives, Hindûs and Musalmâns, together with the custom of boring the right nostril and ear and inserting a gold knob into the holes; as Kuppaśwâmî, Dungheap. From Maisûr and the Southern Marâthâ country Mr. Nârâyan Aiyangâr gave instances of the same custom, and the following names:—

Gunda	Rock	Kalla	Stone
Hucha	Madman	Ţippa	Dunghill

To these from the Canarese country of Maisûr Mr. M. R. Tivârî added—

Giriappa Gundappa Kadappa Kalliâ	Mountain (giri) Rock (gundu) Wilderness (kadú) Stone (kallú)	Kappaṇṇa Kappia Țippia	Black (kappů) Black (kappů) Dunghill (tippe)
---	---	------------------------------	--

After this from the Panjab, where feminine opprobrious names are not common, I was enabled to add the following list:—

$\mathbf{Magro}$	,

As regards the North-West Provinces Mr. William Crooke, C.S., the energetic manager of the Awâ Estates under the Court of Wards, has kindly informed me that the custom of abusive naming and boring the ears and nose exists largely among his tenantry. He gives the following names:—

Chhiddâ Nose-pierced Nathuâ Nose-ring. Dukhî Pain

Gandhîlâ Râm, a notable name sometimes met with, should probably be referred to this class. The Gandhîlâs are a wretched low tribe of aborigines in the Montgomery and Firozpur Districts, held in great contempt, and usually described as being "homeless sweepers."

But the most important point in these opprobrious names is the indication they give of the customs of the people. Dr. Mitra observed that in Bengal the name for a woman losing several children was madûnche poûtî, and that a subsequently surviving child with an opprobrious name was generically a marchhai. In Terhût such a child, Mr. Grierson says, is called machhai and marachhvû. These words were variously derived from the Sanskrit mrita vatsa (child of death), and mrita śűvaka (child of death). The custom has given rise to a Maithilî (Terhûtî) proverb:—

Machhai ka mây putr sog sahai.

The mother of a machhai has the pain of losing sons.

Dr. Mitra also observed that in Bengal there was a birth custom connected with these names of giving away the machhai immediately after birth, and buying it back at a low price varying from one to nine cowries, but omitting the even numbers. Hence the names—

Ekkaudî	1 Cowry	Satkaudi	7 Cowries
Tinkaudi	3 Cowries	Nakaudi	9 Cowries
Pânchkandî	5 Cowries	•

From Bengal, also, Bâbû Shib Chandar Bose, in Hindoos as they are,* gives us as male names:—

Dukhî	Pain	$\mathbf{Nafar}$	Workman
Ghùi	Cotton	Panchkaudi	5 Cowries
Gobardhan	Dung-made	Tinkandî	3 Cowries

In parts of Bihâr the same custom of sale exists, but in Terhât there is no custom, though the names are in existence, including, however, the even numbers, as Chhakkaudi, 6 Cowries.

To this I would add from the Panjâb Chhadammî, 6 Mites, and Damṛî, Damṛiâ, a Mite. From the North-West Provinces Mr. Crooke has enabled me to add—

Bechaî	Sold	Sahtuâ	Cheap, $(sahtd = sastd)$
Chhadammi	6 Mites	Tinkaurî	3 Cowries
Pachkauri	5 Cowries.

In the Panjab, also, the names Kauda and Kauda, a Cowry, &c. exist, but not with reference to price; though a custom obtains of giving a child to a faqar, and then begging it back as alms, whence—

Male. Female.

Khairâtî Khairâyatî Alms. Khairâtan Alms

Again, in the Panjab they weigh the child against grain, and give the grain to a sweeper as its price, whence—

Male. Female.

Chûhṛâ
Chûhṛâ
Chûhṛiâ
Sweeper, Chûhṛî Sweeper
Chûhṛiâ
Chûhrû

Also, the child is sometimes weighed against grain, and 9 times the weight of the grain with 9 four and pieces are given to a Brahman as alms. Muhammadans will even call in a Brahman to take the alms on such occasions.

These names of Chûhr, &c., also sometimes arise from the allied custom of giving the child to a sweeper-woman to suckle. High-caste Hindûs sometimes from a similar feeling get Musalmân women to suckle these precious children.

Another custom was noted by Mr. Nârâyan Aiyangâr in Maisûr and Madras of placing rubbish from a dunghill in a sieve, and putting the child into it, whence—

Canarese; Tippa, Dunghill
Tamil: Kuppai, Dunghill

In the Panjab the very similar custom obtains of putting a child into an old winnowing basket, or chhajj, with the house sweepings, and then dragging it out of the house into the yard attached whence—

Chhajjû Winnowing basket
Chasiţů \ male
Chasiţů, female
Chasiţi, female

In the North-West Provinces Mr. Crooke says they drag the children about in baskets and give them names, as—

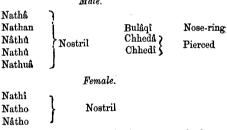

Chhâtariâ Chhitariâ Chlatariâ Chlatariâ Chlatariâ Chlatariâ Chlatariâ Chlataria Chlata

He also mentions the custom of burying the umbilical cord in the field boundary or embankment, or in a dung-pit, as a preventive from evil, whence—

Ghûraî Dung-pit Meṇḍû Embankment

Another class of customs, which may be called the "Mutilating Customs," arises in this connection, and always with the idea of averting evil. Thus the mother cuts off a piece of the child's ear and eats it, whence—

Again, the child's nose is pierced, and it is dressed up as a girl. This arises from the mother's vow to dress up her boy as a girl for from four to ten years. Sometimes the custom stops at piercing the nose, and giving the child an appropriate name, as—

The notion conveyed in these mutilating customs is that unblemished or beautiful children are supposed to be the special victims of fairies, who walk off with them, and of demons, who possess them. There is a well-known tale told of Akbar, which turns on this superstition.*

The opposite custom of dressing up girls as boys and giving them boys' names also obtains, when several girls are born successively without a son and heir, in the hope that the next child will be a boy. Instances of such names in the Panjåb are Akkû, from åk, an asclepiad, milky-plant, and Asû, hope. The successive birth of daughters in Bengal gives rise also to opprobrious names for girls, as—

Årnå No more Ghairnå Despised Chhî-chhî Dirt Khainto Cessation*

Lastly, a child is dressed up by way of dedication, as a faqir in honour of some saint. Especially is this the case at the Muharram, when the Musalmâns make a faqir of the child for the nonce in honour of the Imâms, and hence the name, Faqîriâ.

Under the head of special customs, though differing from the above, come the following. In the Panjab second wives, married on the death of former ones, have names akin to the opprobrious ones, each depending on a curious custom. The new wife on entering her husband's house for the first time carries on her head, if poor, a pot of water or milk, or a basket of vegetables; if rich, it is carried for her by a woman of the castes carrying on such occupations. The wife is henceforth called in the new household by the name suited to the special circumstances of the case. Thus—

Gujjrî Cowherdess Mehrî Portress. Mâlan Gardener

A class of names also arises in connection with surviving children, which partakes of the religious character. These are given in honour of some god or saint, to whom the child is dedicated, and hence comes one origin, of several, for such names as—

Devî DâsServant of the Great GoddessGûganDedicated to Gurû GuggâGur DâsServant of the Religious TeacherMadârîDedicated to Shâh MadârMâtâ DînServant of the Great Mother

Zâhiriâ Dedicated to Zâhir Pîr, i.e., to Gurû Guggâ Mr. Crooke gives another origin for such names. The mothers of such children name them in honour of the gods or saints worshipped during pregnancy, whence such names for surviving children, as—

† i.e., Hanuman. This last is sometimes very curiously shortened into Hanû. § i.e., Guggâ, see above.

Female.

Durganiâ Pârbatî Lachhmî Râdhâ Saraswatî

Such children, too, bear special names of affection, in place of opprobrious ones, indicative of the extremely high value placed on them. Hence such names as—

Lastly, there is a well-known personage in Ambâlâ City, named Maulvî Ghulâm Bhîk, who came by this extraordinary name thus. His parents had lost several children and vowed, that if the next child proved a boy, they would give it a humble name, in the hope that it might so survive, and that at the same time they would dedicate it to Sayyid Bhîk, an old saint of considerable local celebrity, whose tomb and shrine are at a village about 14 miles from Ambâlâ. When the boy was born he was accordingly dedicated to the saint, and named after him Ghulâm Bhîk, or the Slave of the Beggar, that being a very humble form of name.

Another curious source of names is accident of birth, either as to time or place. In the Census tables the names referring to time or place of birth form one per cent. of the whole. Instances are—

In the same category we should place the numerous names connected with the word nānak, the mother's family, all meaning born at the mother's home.

Mr. Crooke says that names indicating the time of birth are very common in the North-West Provinces, and gives the following instances:—

several sources, are really names indicating developed peculiarities of mind or body. They all appear to have a literal and an applied sense, and to have been invented for the more or less apt manner in which they express the latter. It would, of course, be going beyond the truth to say that an ordinary native in naming his son Bhauna Singh, or obviously Master Bumble-Bee, would necessarily imply thereby that he thought him a "rolling stone," though this would be its applied sense. Similarly Jugna Râm, Firefly, implies weakness of will, and Dhâna Mall, Rice-plant, indicates mediocrity. In the same way in England no man would reflect that he should name his daughter Matilda or Eliza, and not Maud or Alice, to be etymologically correct, nor do Europeans reflect on what is implied in James, Jacques, Jacob, Jacopi, Giacomo, all corresponding to the oriental Ya'qûb, or in John, Jean, Juan, Johann, Giovanni, which correspond to the Eastern Yahya.

The fact, however, of the natives being sometimes aware of the aptness of a name, and using a word to indicate a peculiarity, may be thus illustrated. I had a Newfoundland puppy, which, when born, was a fat round ball, though he grew into a rather thin lanky dog. My servants in his very early days promptly named him Modû,* from motá, fat, and Modû he has remained all his days. In a fanciful story by Mrs. Steel, (Number 18 of the Panjab Folklore Series in the Indian Antiquary), entitled "Little Ankle Bone," (Gitta), the hero calls himself in one place Gitetâ Râm, obviously for the purpose of proclaiming himself to be what he really was, an ankle bone. There is further a well-known proverb which turns on the apt application of a name to its owner: - Is daulat men tin nam, Parsa, Parsa, Paras Rdm. In life are three names, Parsû, Parsâ and Paras Râm, i.e., a man is Parsû, in diminutive, while he is still poor and insignificant, becoming Parsa as he gets on, -not insignificant any longer, but still to be familiarly addressed,-and finally he blossoms into Paras Râm in full, when he gathers riches and is a personage of import-Similarly in one of Mrs. Steel's Folktales, (Folklore from Kashmîr, Number 5, Indian Antiquary), Little Fattû, the Weaver, becomes Fatteh Khân, the General. And, again, in a tale I procured from the Murree (Marhi) Hills (Calcutta Review, vol. CL., pp. 276-280, 1882), the great Bikramâjît (Vikramâditya) converts himself into Bikrû, the Servant.

Here are other proverbs turning on the application of proper names.

(1) Ab dyd merd Jiwayya, main karûngî thâyya thâyya.

My Life (Jiwâyyâ) is coming now, and I shall dance for joy.

(2) Âyû merî Nawâ Nâtii, bhanne bartan, patte pûth.

Here comes Master Novice, breaking the plates and making mud pies. This is said of a destructive child. The Novice, or new jogi, is made to do all kinds of menial work, and naturally does not at first do it well.

(3) Ai merî Sartâjo, kurat nahîn kachû kûjo.

Ah, Miss Grandlady, that does no work. Said of an idle consequential girl.

(4) Âî merî Nannîn, par hâkhîn te hai anhîn.

Miss Trot has come, but her eyes are blind. Said to a stupid girl in reproof, adverting to the fact that little children (nanhi) are not sharp, and are apt to run against corners.

(5) Akhán te hai anhá atte nán Nainsukh.

Blind of the eyes and called Fine-Eyes.

Similarly I have a couplet in Persian playing on the name Hoshnâkî, which means clever, wide-awake, sensible.

Hoshnákí rá cheh goyam? hosh n'est.

Kår kardan go, magar ån josh n'est.

What shall I say to Hoshnâkî? he has no sense.

Set him to work and he shows no spirit.

To these may be added such phrases as the following which are used as "chaff":--

- (1) Yeh shakhs haqiqat men Sürij Partüpi hai, kyünke usse tamüm duniyü kü füeda pahunchtü hai. This person is indeed the Splendid Sun, as he benefits the whole world.
- (2) Chând Râm ism bâ musamma hai. His name of Mr. Moon hits him off. Said of a black man.
  - (3) Hần, bhấi, yeh nac Baingan ki tarkari hai; jo cháhe, so khúc.

Ah, brother, here is a fresh Brinjal, who likes can eat. I.e., he is a man easily led.

The childish fondness of the native literati of playing upon words is well known to all readers of oriental literature, and such expressions as the above are considered clever even on the thousandth repetition, just as all munshis show genuine delight in the wit of the well-worn bon mot, "ddl-fe-'ain karo" (for dafa' karo), "dismiss him."

One munshi gave me a quantity of verses, exhibiting the meanings and senses of proper names, but as I more than suspect that he concocted them all himself, and that they are not folklore, I have relegated them to an Appendix, where they will be found with translations for the benefit of the curious.

To return to the derivation of names. In many cases mental qualities, habits of body, or outward personal peculiarities are directly indicated by proper names, as—

Chhajjâ*	Longbeard	Melâpân	Friendly
Kubbe Singh	Hunchback	Rog Lâl	Sickly
Lûlû	Maimed	Sîtal Râm	Inoffensive
Magrâ Mall	Sulky

But metaphorically almost any word in the language can be used to designate the idiosyncracies of human beings. In the table of Hindû names such metaphorical words are divided into 15 classes, viz., words derived from those in use to describe—(1), Common Objects in daily and domestic life, (2) Heavenly Objects, (3) Animals, (4) Birds, (5) Reptiles, (6) Fish and Marine Animals, (7) Insects, (8) Trees, (9) Flowers, (10) Fruits, (11) Herbs, (12) Plants, (13) Precious Stones and Metals, (14) Trades, Professions and Occupations. There are besides a large quantity of words in use as names, which cannot be better classed than, as (15) Miscellaneous. Of such names are the following:—

$\mathbf{\hat{A}g}$ Singh	Fire	Gudrî Lâl	Rag
Ajgarân	Pythoness	Gulâb Rai	Rose
Belî Râm	Creeper	Hiria	Diamond
Chândo	$\mathbf{Moon}$	Hirno	Deer
Chirâghâ	Lamp	Imliâ	Tamarind
Chúhá Singh	Rat	Jawâhir Lâl	Jewel

* This name is of quite different meaning and origin to the opprobrious name Chajjha, Winnowing basket.

Kachhwe Râm	Tortoise	Sadásohágá	Shoe-flower
Mendkû	Frog	Saudâgar M all	Merchant
Mirchî Mall	Pepper	Sukhdarshan	Amaryllis
Mornů	Pea-chick	Sûrijmukh	Sun-flower
Namolî	Nim-leaf	Sûrij Bali	Strong Sun
Pissû Singh	Flea	Supârâ	Betel-nut
Râj Kânwar	Princess	Totâ Mall	Parrot

As above said, any kind of word will do for a name, and as instances may be given Deorhâ from derh, one and a half, and the well-known Sawâî or Sawâyyâ from sawû, one and a quarter, which has been rendered famous as being the name or title of the celebrated royal astronomer of the last century, Râjâ Jai Singh Sawâî of Âmber and founder of Jaipûr. It was deliberately given him as indicating him to be "a man and a quarter," and something beyond the usual run of mortals. Similarly curious are such names as Hisâbâ, Computation, Gharz Singh, Necessity, Shitabû, Quickly, Tikkâ, the !ika mark on the forehead, and Alfu or Alfi, from the letter Alif.*

Position in life is sometimes indicated by a name; e.g., only sons are called Chirâghâ, Lamp (of the house), Gulâbû, Rose, Jugnâ, Firefly, Sukhdarshan, Fair to see (amaryllis), Tikkâ, Heir. Of such import, too, are the majority of opprobrious names indicating, as has been above shown, that the child so called is the survivor, or rather the successor, of several deceased infant children. names, also, for second or subsequent wives as Mâlan and Gujjrî, as above explained, indicate the position of the bearers in the family.

The complementary additions to names give rise themselves to a numerous class of separate names, numbering as many as 5 per cent. in the Census table. Specimens are-

Among metaphorical words must be included those of Persian and Arabic origin, and one such at least I can recal, which is of Turki descent, viz., Bulâqî, nose-ring. But this, as before explained, is an opprobrious name arising from a birth custom. It is found compounded with Shâh, Khân, Rai and Chand. In Indian history many Turkî names, as was inevitable, have occurred, such as Arslân, Lion, Kai, Great King, Khilij, Sword, Tagîn, Warrior, Taghrul, Falcon, Tash, Stone. But none of these have found their way into the nomenclature of the populace, and need not be considered here.

The following is a list of some of the names having Arabic and Persian derivations not directly attributable to the influence of the Muhammadan religion:—

In the table of Hindû names an attempt has been made to show the applied sense as well as the literal and direct meaning of the words used, though to do so is to tread on difficult and dangerous ground. First attempts, indeed, are pretty sure to fail to a considerable extent, and no certainty can be reached on such points until the subject has been well threshed out. I do not put forth my derivations as being anything more than first attempts. Instances are very numerous of more than one origin for a name, and consequently of its being used in more than one sense, and from more than one reason. These should be borne in mind to keep one careful before finally accepting a derivation, especially as native information on the subject of etymology is very apt to be incorrect and illusive, that form of study not being as yet scientifically understood by the native literati.

Two prominent cases of this occurred in the discussion in the Indian Antiquary, and are well worth notice here, and indeed call for the attention of all students of the subject. Dr. Mitra in the Indian Antiquary and the Bâbû, author of The Hindoos as they are, at page 28 of his book, both give Gobardhan, Dung-made, as an opprobrious name. It admits of that etymology and is so used, but it can also be derived from Govardhana, the mountain in Bindraban, (Vrindâvana), of classical fame, and is used in Bihâr and the Panjâb as a religious name. E.g., Gobardhan and Gordhan Dâs, common names in the Panjâb, and the Maithilî name Gobardhan. Again, Chhajjû is found as an opprobrious name arising from a birth custom, and means a winnowing basket, but Chhajjû and Chhajjâ Singh, also existing widely in the Panjâb have, to a Sikh especially, the highly honourable signification of Long-beard. From the tables, I would mention here, among many others, the following:—

CHAPTER IV.

So far we have been dealing chiefly with Hindû's names. Let us now turn our attention to those of Muhammadans. The subject has been extensively worked by native 'Arab writers and by several scholars in Europe, mainly from the Arabic point of view. A resumé of their works is to be found in the articles of Sir T. E. Colebrooke in the Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society.* From these chiefly are taken the following remarks on the abstract principles of Muhammadan nomenclature, which are here enumerated with a view to showing how far they have affected the names of Muhammadan peasants in our Eastern Panjâbî villages.

It should be noted here that no difference has been made throughout this enquiry between the names of Sun's and Shi'as, because in practise there is none in India. Shi'as of the educated classes often suffix the names of the Imams, as 'Ali, Hassan, Hussain, &c., to their ordinary names in order to show their creed, but names so compounded are as often used by Indian Sun's also; and among the poor and uneducated, when they happen to be Shi'as which is rare, there is no difference in nomenclature whatever.

A Muhammadan's proper name throughout the oriental world is called (1) his 'alam,† as Ahmad, 'Ali, Yahya.

Besides this, individuals can bear some or all of the following:—

- (2) the kunya, name of relationship, as Abûl' Abbâs, the father of 'Abbâs; Ibn Muḥammad, the son of Muḥammad.
- (3) the laqub, honorary title, as Ar-Rashid, the guide; Ash-Shafi, the noble; Al-Mansûr, the defended of God.
- (4) the ansáb, names of denomination, as Mariam Kubtiya, Mary the Copt: Salîm Chishtî, Salîm the Chishtî.
  - (5) the 'alama, royal title, as An-Nasiru'llah, the helper of God.

† I transliterate the Arabic words according to their orthography and pronunciation in India.

- (6) the 'anwan, title of honour, as Ḥujjatu'l-Islâm, the testimony of Islâm.
  - (7) the takhallus, nom-de-plume, as Hâfiz, Nazîr, Saudâ, Wassâf.

Of these, the 'alâma and the 'anwân are difficult to distinguish from the laqab, and the former of these by the necessity of the case could never be borne by a peasant, nor practically could the latter. The ansâb and the takhallus are naturally outside the scope of peasant nomenclature, nor could the kunya be used as such in India, where the waldâyat, or system of naming by relationship, is so different. We have then to fall back on the 'alam and the laqab, whence to derive our village Musalmân names.

Among the 'Arabs the proper names are divided into pre-Islamite and post-Islamite, the latter after Muhammad's time practically ousting the former. In India the Musalmans, of course, in borrowing Arabic names take only those connected with their adopted religion, i.e., the post-Islamite names, which were originally restricted to the names of the saintly heroes connected with their new faith, and those of the Hebrew patriarchs and prophets named in the Qurân. These were not long in ceasing to be distinctive, and hence arose the necessity for additions.

From the first source of sacred names came such names as Muhammad, 'Ali, Mustafa', Hassan, Hussain, 'Abdallah, Ahmad, Mahmad, 'Umar and so on. The following list will be found to fairly exhaust the real Arabic proper names from this source:—

	Post- Islamite	Names.
'Abaid	little servant	Asad	Leo
'Abbås	stern	Badr	full moon
'Abdallah	Muḥammad's father	Fazl	excellent

Arising from the second source of saintly names may be mentioned the following:—

Mûsa	Moses	Zakarîa	Zachariah
Nuḥ	Noah

To these must be added the well-known Iskandar (or Sikandar) Zu'l-karnain, Alexander the Great.

There is, however, a third source of real Muhammadan proper names to be found in the "Most Comely Names of God," combined with the word 'abd, servant. As a matter of fact, all the names of God cannot be in use, and only the better known ones are put under contribution. Some, however, are very common, and of these the following are examples:—

'Abdu'l-'Azîz	Servant	of the	All Honoured
'Abdu'l-Ghafûr	,,,	,,	All Forgiving
'Abdu'l-Ghanî	,,	1,	Ever Abiding
'Abdu'l-Ḥâmid	,,	,,	All Praiseworthy
'Abdu'l-Karîm	,,	,,	All Gracious
'Abdu'llah*	,,	,,	God
'Abdu'l-Latîf	,,	,,	All Gracious
'Abdu'l-Majîd	,,	,,	All Worthy
'Abdu'l-Qâdir	,,	,,	Almighty
'Abdu'l-Wahhab	,,	,,	All Bountiful
'Abdu'r-Rahîm	,,	,,	All Pitiful
'Abdu'r Rahmân	,,	,,	All Merciful
'Abdu'r-Razzâq	,,	,,	Bread Giver
'Abdu'sh-Shukûr	,,	,,	All Requiting
'Abdu's-Sattâr	,,	,,	All Concealing

To these may be added similar names connected with the Prophet, 'Ali, Hasan and Hussain especially, and religion generally, as—

'Abdu'n-Nabbî	Servant of the Prophet
'Abdu'r-Rasûl	Servant of the Prophet
'Ali Kulî	Servant of 'Ali
'Alimu'llah	Learned in God
'Âtâ Muhammad	Gift of Muhammad
Banda 'Ali	Slave of 'Ali
Faiz 'Ali	Grace of 'Ali
Faiz Bakhsh	Given by grace (of 'Ali)

Fayyaz 'Ali Grace of 'Ali

Ghulâm Haidar Slave of the Lion ('Ali)
Ghulâm Hussain Slave of Hussain
Ghulâm Muḥammad Slave of Muḥammad
Haftzu'llah Protected by God

Haidar 'Ali Lion of 'Ali

Haidar Bakhsh Given by the Lion ('Ali)

Hasnain Nawâz Cherished by the Hassans (Hassan and Hussain)

* From this comes a queer common abbreviated Indian name 'Abdûl, with which compare Faizul for Faizu'l-anwâr, Distributor of grace, a title of 'Ali. Another similar common Hindû abbreviation, showing complete ignorance of the derivation of the name abbreviated, is Hanû for Hanumân.

Blessed of God Karimu'llah Delight of God Lutfu'llah Murâd 'Ali Will of 'Ali Murtaza' 'Ali Approved of 'Ali Light of 'Ali Nûr 'Ali Qudratu'llah Power of God Mercy of God Rahmatu'llah Lion of 'Ali Sher 'Ali

Yar Muhammad Friend of Muhammad

Such proper names as these are hard to distinguish from the alq4b, or honorary titles. Sir T. E. Colebrooke classed them among the 'alam, as they were really used as such by the Arabs themselves at all times, whereas the true laqab is a mere honorary title, and could not in many cases have been borne by the owners in their lifetime. For instance—

'Ali Al-murtazâ 'Ali, the approved, applied to 'Ali The Lion of God, applied to 'Ali Asadu'llah Faizu'l-anwâr Distributor of Grace, applied to 'Ali Friend of God, applied to 'Ali Habîbu'llah Friend of God, applied to Abraham Khalîlu'llah Prophet of God, applied to Muhammad Rasolu'llah Saftu'llah Pure in God, applied to Adam Savyidatu'n-nissâ Princess of women, applied to Fâtima Sidgu'llah True in God, applied to Joseph

Among true alqāb well known in history may be mentioned those of the Abbaside Khalifas, as Abû Ja'fir Al-Mansûr, Mûsa Al-Hâdî, Hârân Ar-Rashîd; and those of the twelve Imâms. I give here a list of the Imâms, each with his 'alam and laqab, so as to show the use of these two classes of names the more clearly—

- 1 (a) 'Ali (l) Al-murtaza', the approved
- 2 (a) Hassan (l) Al-imâm, the successor
- 3 (a) Ḥussain (l) Ash-shahîd, the martyr
- 4 (a) 'Ali (l) Az-zainu'l-'âbadîn, the ornament of the servants of God.
- 5 (a) Muḥammad (l) Al-bâqar, the abounding in knowledge
- 6 (a) Ja'fir (l) As-sâdiq, the true
- 7 (a) Mûsa (l) Al-kâzim, the gentle
- 8 (a) 'Ali Mûsa (l) Ar-razâ, the contented
- 9 (a) Mûhammad (l) At-taqî, the God-fearing

- 10 (a) 'Ali (l) An-naqî, the pure.
- 11 (a) Hassan (l) Al-'askarî, the faithful
- 12 (a) Muḥammad (l) Al-mahdî, the dedicated

In Mediæval Asia a sort of rage for vain titles sprang up and gave rise to a marvellous multiplication of honorary distinctions, which, however, hardly affect Indian village names, though their presence in the names of Indian Musalman princes and nobles is common enough to the present day. They are, too, frequently extended to Hindûs, e.q., Amiru'l-'ulamâ-wal-fazalâ, Prince of the Wise and Learned, the official title not long ago bestowed on Sirdar 'Atar Singh of Bhadaur. Witness, also, three titles borne by Sikh Chieftains, given here as specimens of what such were during the later years of the Sikh rule in the Panjab. In 1837 Maharaja Ranjît Singh gave the following title to Sirdâr 'Atar Singh Sindhânwâliâ, viz., Ujjal-dîdâr, Nirmal-budh, Sirdâr-bâ-wagâr, Qaisaru'l-iqtidâr, Sarwar-i-giroh-i-nâmdâr, Â'lâ-tabâ'î, Shujâ'u'ddaulâ, Sirdâr 'Atar Singh, Shamsher-i-jang Bahâdur, the meaning of which is the Bright of Countenance and the Clear of Intellect, the honoured Sirdar, the Lord of Power and Chief of the Company of the Famous, the Highminded Warrior of the State, Sirdâr 'Atar Singh, the Brave Sword of the State. In the same year he gave this hero's brother, Sirdâr Lahná Singh Sindhanwalia, the title of Ujjal-didar, Nirmal-budh, Sirdâr-bâ-waqâr, Sirdâr Lahnâ Singh, Sindhânwâliâ, Bahâdur. 26th November 1842, Ranjît Singh's successor, Mahârâjâ Sher Singh, gave to Râjâ Tej Singh the following title Ujjal-dîdâr, Nirmal-budh, Mubâshiru'l-mulk, Samsâmu'ddaulâ, Râjâ Tej Singh, Sâlâr Safdarjang, Râjâ Siâlkot, which means the Bright of Countenance and the Clear of Intellect, the Ornament of the Land and the Strong Sword of the State, Râjâ Tej Singh, the Brave Leader of War, the Râjâ of Siâlkot.*

This species of  $alq\hat{a}b$  ends usually in din, faith, and daula, state, and the names are sometimes compounded with  $z\hat{u}$ , possessor. It is not difficult to recal some such names, as—

Compounded with zú two well known names rise before the mind. Zû'l-karnain, the Two-horned, the celebrated epithet of Alexander the Great, and Zû'l-fikâr, the Spined, the equally renowned epithet of Muhammad's sword, and now not an uncommon proper name. Many more could be added, but they are not in common use.

To these customs and times we must attribute such high-flown nonsense in the matter of titles, still unfortunately in use, as—

Amîru'l-mûminîn Amîru'l-mûminîn Ashrafu'l-ashraf Kâfiu'l-kufât Shamsu'l-ma'âlî Prince of the world Commander of the faithful Noblest of the noble Perfect of the perfect

Sun of the heights

I have dwelt thus at length on the 'alam and laqab, as generally used, because from them are derived all the names of ordinary Musalmans in India, which are due to religious influences, and have not an Indian origin like those of their Hindu neighbours. An examination of the Muhammadan names in the Census table shows that about half, or 48 per cent., of them are of religious, i.e., of Arabic or foreign origin, and that the remainder, or 52 per cent., differ in no way from those of Hindus. The actual figures are that out of 323 Muhammadan names 155 are of religious origin, and 168 are similar to those of Hindûs. Even of the religious Muhammadan names only about half are directly religious in form, viz., 71 out of 155, or 23 per cent. of the entire list of the Muhammadan names. The remainder of these religious names, or 77 per cent. of the whole list, are Hindûized, i.e., Hindû in form even when not so in origin. The direct religious names found in the table, and given here to show what kind of names are chosen as a rule, are as follows:—

By Hindûized names are meant those that take the regular Hindû terminations. These are very numerous, and a long list is given here to show how the Arabic (and Persian) words are affected in form by being twisted into a Hindû shape:—

It is to be further observed that out of a total of 1,067 names in the Census table 196, or about 18 per cent., are used as common to Hindûs and Musalmâns, and that all of these are practically of Hindû origin. This shows clearly how largely the Indian village Muhammadans indent on their Hindû neighbours for their proper names, and how little in this respect they carry out the customs of their adopted religion. The following is a list of such names, which it is worth while examining further:—

Names common to Hindûs and Musalmans.

Before remarking further on these mixed or common names I will instance the following found in the table as belonging only to Musalmans, but obviously of Hindú origin:—

Hindú names of Musalmans.

Baghar	Gâgân	Hastâ	Nonâ	Sandlo
Bhaisbân	Gâmo	Jammûn]	Oŗî	Sardârâ
Bhekhî	Ghissa	Kâdû	Rânî	Sarwan
Bhûkhâ	Gondal	Kahndal	Rânjhâ	Sîhniàn
Bhunnî	Gûn â	Kanyân	Râso	Suhânî

The points to be observed in the above lists are, that in them are to be found the following opprobrious names derived only from certain Indian customs, as above explained:—

Bhûrâ	Ghasîţâ	Khairâtan	Mûlâ
Chhițțar	Kâḍû	Kûŗâ	Nathû
Chûhŗâ	Kallû	Mahingâ

And that in them are included such thoroughly Hindû names, as-

Bhâgâ	${f f}$ ate	Kanyan	maiden
Bîrâ	warrior	Nânak	mother's home
Bissi	Vishņu	Nanh ā	darling
Chandâ	moon	Nânû	mother's home
Jhandâ	standard	Râjâ	king

I would further illustrate this Hindûization, as it were, by educing the fact that a Muḥammadan, the father of a Chaudhri, in Ambālā, is called variously Gangā Rām, Ganguā and Gangū, which is Hindûism with a vengeance! Even high up in society is to be found the same tendency among Musalmān Rājpūts. E. g., such curious mixtures as Rājā Jahāndād Khāū, Rāo Sarfarāz Khāū, Rai Iliās Khāū, Shekh Nānak Bakhsh, Maulvî Ghulām Bhîk,* with which, however, may be compared Miān Sukhdarshan Singh, and also Ḥasnū and similar Islamite names among Hindūs.

From these facts alone, it is plain, were it not so from many others, that the Muhammadans of the lower sort do not differ in their customs from their Hindû neighbours. They have not, in fact, by changing their religion, changed the deeply-rooted habits or notions of centuries of previous Hindûism. As a matter of fact, Muhammadans have the same ideas about naming children as the Hindûs entertain, as will be shown hereafter.

From the above remarks it will have been seen, that in a Panjâbî village the names of Musalmâns, as a whole, very largely partake of the nature of the surrounding Hindû nomenclature, and that only in a small degree are the orthodox methods of forming Muhammadan proper names observed, and, where they are observed, the 'alam and the lagab are the forms adopted.

Before closing the observations on Muhammadan names a few special notes are necessary on those of females. It will have been already observed that in the main these show all the characteristics of the male names, and all that need be done here is to account for those that have a special origin in the Muhammadan religion. These are very limited in number, being mostly confined to the names of Muhammad's female relatives. Some, however, refer to the pre-Islamite names. The most usual female names of such origin are—

CHAPTER V.

Having thus seen that the Indian Muhammadan and Hindû systems of nomenclature do not differ from each other, except in so far as the former is affected by religious influences, let us now proceed to enquire whence this joint Indian Aryan system springs. There can be no doubt that it has been in force from all time, and is indeed the form that human nomenclature would naturally assume. Even if the Indian Muhammadans had adhered to Arabic names, and taken what were in existence, nearly all those of pre-Islamite origin would have proved to be directly derived from words in every-day use, in precisely the same way as those of their Hindû ancestors.*

Going back, then, to the earliest times, and taking the names of the Vedic and Puranic deities and heroes, I find among many others the following names:—

All the gods, moreover, had synonyms or epithets by the dozen; some descriptive, some attributive, some having reference to legends, though perhaps in these latter cases the legends were invented to account for the names, but all directly derived from the ordinary words of the language, either in their simple shape or as parts of compounds. These were afterwards extensively used as proper names, and have since been adopted into the nomenclature of to-day in their modern guise. Here are instances:—

The above lists give us the proper names of the Vedic and Purânic days, and illustrate the formation of these in the earliest times. To carry the enquiry into the Epic period I give here alphabetically the names of the kings of the Solar and Lunar Dynasties as found in Dowson's Dictionary of Hindû Mythology, s.v.v. Srûyavansa and Chandravansa, adding the meanings of the words as far as I have been able to ascertain the same. They are in their Sanskrit form, and are valuable as showing how men were named in the Epic days. Some Sanskritists will be inclined to dispute the correctness of the succession as given by Professor Dowson, and many of the kings bore several names not to be found in his lists. be this as it may, his lists amply suffice for the present purpose. It will be seen on examination that some of these names are still extant, and that the same wonderful variety, now so remarkable a feature in Indian nomenclature, was even then maintained. out of a list of 292 of these old kings only the following names, 21 in number, occur more than once, and of these only two, Haryaśva and Dasaratha, occur thrice, and none more than three times :-

Anenas	Haryaśva	Suketu
Ayutâyus	Janamejaya	Sunaya
Bhîmaratha	Maru	Sunitha
Chitraratha	Ŗiksha	Śûra
Daśaratha	Śatânîka	Vidûratha
Dhrishtaketu	Śruta	Vijaya
Dilîpa	Suhotra	Viśvasaha
		Yuvanaśva

The Solar Race consisted of the dynasties of Ayodhyâ (Oudh, Avadh) and Mithilâ (Terhût), and the Lunar Race of three dynasties, viz., the Yâdavas and Pauravas, famous in story, and the kings of Kâśî (Benares). The names they bore are as under:—

To carry on the inquiry still further into historical times I find in an article by Dr. Râjendralâla Mitra on the Pâla and Sena Râjâs of Bengal, (Journal, Asiatic Society of Bengal, Vol. XLVII., pp. 401-402), the following names of kings, given as reigning from about 855 to about 1142 A.D. The names are still in the Sanskrit form, and differ, it will be seen, in no way from those above given.

Succession of Pala Kings.

Go Pâla	Nârâyana Pâla	Naya Pâla
Dharma Pâla	Râja Pâla	Vigraha Pâla
Deva Pâla	Vigraha Pâla	•
Vigraha Pâla	Mahi Pâla

Vira Sena	Ballâla Sena	Aśoka Sena
Sâmanta Sena	Lakshmana Sena	Ballâla Sena
Hemanta Sena	Mâdhava Sena	Su Sena
Vijaya Sena	Keśava Sena	Śûra Sena

Similarly in a paper by Mr. Vincent Smith, C.S., on the History of Bundelkhand, (Journal, Asiatic Society of Bengal, Vol. L., pp. 23-24) I find another Sanskrit list of kings of the same period, A.D. 831-1182, in which the same points are to be observed.

Succession of the Chandel Dynasty.

Nânika	Vidhyâdhara Deva
Vâkpati	Vijaya Pâla Deva
Vijaya	Kîrtti Varmma
Râhila	Sallakshana Varmma Deva
Harsha	Jaya ∀armma Dev â
Yaśo Varmma	Prithivi Varmma Deva
Dhanga	Madana Varmma Deva
Ganda Deva	Paramârddi Deva

Lastly, to complete the link between the ancient and modern nomenclature, I give a list of the Chohân Rulers of Ramthâmbor up to about A.D. 1320, to be found in a translation of the Hamîr Râsâ in the Journal, Asiatic Society of Bengal, Vol. XLVIII., pp. 247-252. This list is the modern style of speaking, and is worth comparing with the names of to-day to show that they in no way differ from those of 500 years ago either in form or derivation.

It should be borne in mind here that for the great variety of names to be observed in the lines of these kings, there is the further explanation that it is not customary to name a child directly after any of his known progenitors.

There is one more point to be noted in this connection. In studying Sanskrit nomenclature no fact becomes more prominent than that almost every word in the language, even ka? who?, was used to designate human beings. Open Monier-Williams' Sanskrit Dictionary almost at random, and it will be found that opposite nearly every word, either in its ordinary shape or as part of a compound, is recorded, "Name of so-and-so," "Name of a man, of a king, of a prince," and so on. And from this it will be seen partly whence the wondrous variety of Indian proper names has arisen. Here are * This list of 177 generations can have no historical existence, but it is of value for the present purpose as showing what were considered to be real names, and used as such some 500 years ago.

instances, without having recourse to compounds, of ordinary Sanskrit words used as names:—

CHAPTER VI.

LIKE other people the Indians have long been in the habit of adding titles and distinctions to their proper names. The orthodox Muhammadan ansab, or names of denomination, and 'anwan, or the title of honour, have been previously described, and as examples of the former were given Mariam Kubtiya, Mariam the Copt, Salîm Chishtî, Salîm of the Chishtia order of Saints, and of the latter Hujiatu'l-Islâm, the Testimony of Islâm. Something of the nature of both classes of names exists in the Panjab among all classes. As belonging to the denominational order may be classed the misal, or clan, names of the Sikhs,* which are used very much after the manner of the Arabic ansab, thus Fatteh Singh Ahlûwâlia, Jassâ Singh Râmgarhiâ, Ranjît Singh Sukarchakiâ. These names signified originally the misal to which the owner belonged, and now-a-days they generally mean that the owner belongs to the family which led the misal in the older time. They should be translated, being nearly all geographical and in some cases strictly territorial, as Fatteh Singh of Âhlûwâl, Jassâ Singh of Râmgarh, Ranjit Singh of Sukarchak. The following are among the chief of the Sikh clan names past and present:-

Åhlûwâliâ, for kalâls, distillers and publicans, and Râmgarhiâ, for tarkhâns, carpenters.

Working on the same lines Panjâbî Chammârs often now call themselves Ramdâsiâ after the Sikh Gurû Râm Dâs, but in mistake apparently for the Bhagat Râodâs, Ravîdâs, or Raidâs,* and also Raghubansiâ after the Bhagat Raghbîr.

There can be little doubt of these names partaking of the nature of the ansāb, their very termination iā being, I take it, the remains of the Sanskrit adjectival ika, though the munshîs characteristically derive it from the Punjâbî termination of the vocative case!

In a similar manner, in the Panjâb, the descendants of the Sikh Gurûs have special names. These are—

Bâwâ Descendant of the 2nd Gurû Angad

Bedî Descended from Gurû Nânak's caste

Bhâi Descendant of the Sikh Saints

Gurû Descendant of Gurû Nânak

Sodhî Descendant of the 4th Gurû Râm Dâs

They are prefixed to the name, as Bhâi Pherû, Bâwâ Gharîb Singh, Sodhî Mân Singh. Bhâî is also a common title of Sikh saints or holy men. So is Bâwâ of wandering village faqîrs, as Bâwâ Râm Dâs from the Census tables. Bâwâ, too, by an odd change in calling and occupation often now means a "woodseller."

Faqîrs of all sorts are very fond of titles of this kind, as Udâsî, Sultânî, Pirzâdâ, and so on. This appears to have been always widely the case.† Thus among Muhammadans we have the well-known sects—

And to these I would add:— Jallalia	Naqshbandia	Sohâgiâ
Gâzrûniâ	Saqtiâ
F irdûsi â	Karkhiâ	Zaidi â

I These are the same.

Family titles, often descended from some ancestor, who has distinguished himself in a particular manner, are used in the same way, and usually prefixed to the proper name. Such are for Muhammadans and Hindús as follows, but their sectarian character is not always maintained:—

Similarly tribal names are added to the proper names, but suffixed, and this appears to be a universal custom in the East.* In the Panjab such tribal names are among many others as follows:—

It will have been noticed, too, that in the lists of kings given previously certain additions occurred regularly to distinguish, as it were, groups of Râjâs. Thus we had Pâla and Sena Râjâs of Bengal, and in the long Ranthâmbor list we find Chandar, Dev, Dit, Mandab, Pâl, Râj, Râjâ, Râo and Rikh, as the distinguishing surnames, so to speak, of long lists of successive princes of the line. These partake strongly of the nature of the Arabic ansâb, and are in use in many families of consideration. Thus Râm, Chand, Nâth, Singh,* and so on, will run on from father to son as a family name, E.q.:—

Hari Râm	Hîrâ Chand
Pahârî Râm	Bhúp Chand
Shibbû Râm	Rûp Chand
Kirpâ Râm	Shâm Chand
Dhanî Râm	Hamîr Chand
Sobhâ Râm	Hem Chand
	Pahârî Râm Shibbû Râm Kirpâ Râm Dhanî Râm

These family appellatives are not confined to Hindus; witness the names of the well-known Shahi dynastics of the Dakhan, as—

The 'Âdil Shâhs of Bìjâpûr

The Kutb Shâhs of Golkonda

The Nizâm Shâhs of Ahmadnagar.

Witness also the names of the Bârakzai Princes of the last century, which go in groups, as-

* The Singh of the literate classes in the Sinha and Sinh of pedantic Hindî; vide Growse's and Hunter's works. In the Panjab, however, among the villagers it is often pronounced Sun, Son, Sain, or Sain.

All the above princes were half-brothers by different mothers and sons of Paind Khân, the founder of the Bârakzai family of Kâbul.* In the same manner, too, Almad Khân is the distinguishing appellation of the Lohârû family of the Delhi District, 'Ali Khân of one branch of the Mandals of Karnâl, 'Ali Khân of the Nawâbs of Maler Kotlâ, Muḥammad of the Nawâbs of Dojânâ.

In a similar way titles, nicknames, or whatever one might call them, are, amongst the lower and middle classes, very apt to stick long after the cause for them has died away. E.g., in Ambâlâ are two merchants' shops known usually as Ilâhî Bakhsh Merathwâlâ and Ilâhî Bakhsh Dillîwâlâ, but also as Ilâhî Bakhsh Batlâ and Ilâhî Bakhsh Chhautâî. Both these Ilâhî Bakhsh's are long dead. and their sons are trading in their stead, but the former has got his soubriquet because his father, who died a man of great wealth started life as a regimental mess butler; batla being a corruption of The latter's father was for some trifling offence the English butler. flogged during the rough days of the Mutiny with a whip, in . Panjâbî, chhauțá or chhántá, whence Chhauţâî, the flogged or whipped. In time no doubt the origin of these names will be entirely forgotten, and the families will each have an underivable surname, as it were. Natives, through ignorance generally, often have wrongly formed names, as the Hanû above quoted, and Sâlag, the name of one of my chuprásis, which he and his friends consider to be the shortened form of Sålag (or Sålig) Råm, the real word being Sála-grâma, in Sanskrit the philosopher's stone, and in modern dress it should be Sâl Grâm, a form of name I have sometimes heard.

It will not be out of place here to extract a short account of common Musalman titles as used in Persia proper, as they have a direct bearing on Indian Musalman names and titles. Messrs. Haggard and Le Strange† say that in Persia every man who can read and write prefixes Mirza to his name, but princes suffix Mirza thus Mirza Fazhad is Mr. Fazhad: Fazhad Mirza is Prince Fazhad.

Again Khân meant originally what Chief did in Scotland among the clans, but now-a-days Khâns are as common in Tehrân as Esquires are in London; and this title, with Âqâ or Âghâ, is in courtesy applied to all persons above the position of a servant. Like Mîrâz, Âqâ, or Âghâ, is both prefixed and suffixed to the name and with something of the same effect, but not invariably so. Thus usually Âqâ Bashîr is Bashîr the Steward's name, and Tîmûr Âqâ is Tîmûr the Gentleman's name. Servants are generally called Beg; e short as in peg, (but in India it is always long as in the Sanskritic languages.) All ladies are called Khânum, the feminine form of Khân.

Corresponding to the 'anwan, or honorific title, there is a very interesting class of names. All observers of the lower orders of natives will have noticed that our "bearers" are called Sardar, our sweepers Jama'dâr, our tailors Khalîfa, our gardeners Chaudhrî, and so on. As a matter of fact these honorific class names are common all over India, and much more extended than one would at first suppose. Often, too, on enquiry it will be found that certain local celebrities of the lower classes are known only by such soubriquets, and in this sense they become real proper names. Ask a clodhopping witness in Court, who Amîr Bakhsh and 'Itbârî are and he will stare. Then point them out and he will become intelligent, "Oh, yes! I know That's Khalîfa and that's Baremîân." From my paper in the Indian Antiquary, (vol XI., pp. 117-122) on this subject I chiefly extract the following, containing many of the commonest names of the natives around us, which few people suspect are honorific appellations.

Mr. Ibbetson has given me the following curious instances of Musalmân titles in Hindû families. A family of Baniyâs in Gurgâon have the title of Shekh in memory of a former forcible conversion to Islâm, and the head of a Hindû family in Derâ Ghâzî: Khân, takes the title of Khan in honor of the services of an ancestor named Lachhû Râm to a local Beloch Chief.

Mr. F. Wilson, C.S., also gives some noteworthy instances of titles among both Hindûs and Musalmâns arising out of the habit of never calling certain near relatives by name. Thus a Bâgrî Jât. calls his wife after the father's got or clan, e.g., Godari, if she be of the Godara clan. Similarly the father-in-law, susra, is thus variously called.

Tàyâ Uncle, by the Sirsa Musalmans. Châchâ Panditjî Mr. Brahman, by the Gurgaon Brahmans.

Misarjî Sir Prince, by the Kaiths. Rai Sahib

Lâla Sahib Sir Merchant, by the Baniyas. Sâhjî

Chaudhri Headman, by the Meos. Muqaddam

The old-man, by the Meos. Dokrâ,

The feminine form of this last, dokri, is also applied to the motherin law by the Meos.

* For further information as to these names, see the article in the Indian Antiquary.

CHAPTER VII.

THERE is yet another important point to be considered with regard to Indian names. Every "Hindû of caste" has two separate names; that given him at the casting of his horoscope and contained in his januarpatri or astrological record of nativity, and that by which he is known in life.

All the foregoing remarks apply to the latter class, which is variously called the parsidilh nam or obvious name, the partaksh nam or apparent name, the bolta nam or spoken name, and the bahir kanam or outward name. It is given during the early years of life, arises from various chances in babyhood, and is not connected with any ceremony, unless it happens to be an opprobrious name, in which case it is given at the feast called the chhalla, or panjap, described below. In a similar manner double names, a real and a nickname, of which the latter becomes the one by which the bearer is known in life, are used in Maisûr,* arising from the natural affection of the parents. Such names are—

These nicknames have also another origin in the universal dislike of Indian women of all classes and parts to calling their husbands by name, so that when the husband and son have the same name the nickname becomes necessary and sticks for life. In the Panjab the necessity would never arise, for there the father and son cannot bear the same name, nor could it arise among the Musalmans, the universal and orthodox custom with them being never to name the son after the father.

The other class of names is that called by the "caste" Hindûs "the real name," and variously the janamrāsī nām or genethliacal name, the janams nām or birth name, the janam kā nām or birthday name, and the bhitar kā nām or inner name. It is contained in the janampatri, is of astrological origin, and is used only at marriages and such occasions in life as require a consultation of the stars. The parsidah nām may be the same as the janamrāsī nām, but in practise it is very rarely so. It follows therefore that the latter is seldom used to designate its bearer in his daily life. Low-caste and outcaste Hindûs have no janamrāsī nām, but when they become wealthy they are apt to manufacture one, much as our parvenus manufacture coats-of-arms and from the same feeling.

This astrological naming takes place at the chha!!! (lit. sixth) or panjāp (?= pujāpā, offering), a feast which is held properly on the 6th day after the birth of the child, but also on the 7th, 8th, 9th or 10th day. The friends of the family are called together and hold a feast lasting all night (ratjagā or vigil), during which they sing hymns of praise and rejoicing to music and drumming, and feast according to the usages of their particular caste. A Brāhman is present to cast the horoscope and name the child, which he proceeds to do in the following manner:—

He first enquires from the family exactly at what time the child was born and then turning to his almanac, finds out in what portion of what nachhatar (nakshatra), or lunar mansion, the moment of birth occurred. This information decides the commencing letter of this child's name, but in order to show how this is arrived at I must explain as follows:—Roughly the moon passes into a new mansion once in every twenty-four hours, and the moment of ingress and egress is exactly shown in the native almanacs. The Hindûs divide the day of 24 hours from 6 a.m. to 6 a.m. into 60 gharis of 60 pals each, and each nachhatar into 4 portions called aksharas or ruling letters of 15 qharis or 6 hours each. These portions of nachhatars or ruling letters are shown in the table below, but why they have been so fixed I have been unable to find out. They are. however, of great importance in Hindû life, as fixing the genethliacal names of children, which must begin with the ruling letter, Thus, supposing a boy born on the 26th January, 1882, at 9-30 P.M. has to be named, the almanac shows that the nachhatar, Asuni commenced at 23 gharis 41 pals on that day, i.e., at 3-15 P.M. The four ruling letters of Asuni are chu, che, cho, la, each of 6 hours duration, i.e., chu rules to 9-15 p.m., che to 3-15 a.m., cho to 9-15 a.m., and lá to 3-15 P.M., on the 26th and 27th January. It is therefore clear that this particular child's name is ruled by che, and so he is named genethliacally Chet Râm. Similarly to ascertain the name of a child born on 10th June, 1882, at 1 P.M., the almanac shows that the nachhatar Utrà Bhâdrpâd commenced at 12 gharis 53 pals or 11-20 A.M. Its first letter Du is therefore ruling up to 5-20 P.M., and the child must be named Duni Chand or Durga Parshad.* I give here the Hindû genethliacal table :-

* A sordinary natives have no notion of time, and as it is very important for genethliacal purposes to ascertain the exact moment of birth, there are various queer and interesting ways of doing this, but they are beside the present enquiry.

The nachhatar Abhijit does not last more than six hours, and is merely intercalary to complete the correct computation. Some astrologers do not consider it at all. It follows therefore that genethliacal names rarely begin with ja, je, jo and kha.

Among Muhammadans the orthodox way of naming a child throughout the world is this: At the feast of 'Aqqa or headshaving, so called from 'aqiqa, the down on a baby's head, and which is held 3 days after birth, the local Maulvi is sent for to name the child, which he does thus: -He shouts out the azan, or call to prayer, with a loud voice, and repeats the 1st súrá. Sûrâ-ifâtiha, of the Qurân, or sometimes the 112th, Sûrâ-i-ikhlâs, or in other words the beginning or end of the Quran,* and then takes the book and blows it open. The first letter on the righthand page should commence the name of the child, but if he should not approve of that letter he takes the first letter of the seventh line following. If that displeases, then the first letter of the righthand page of the seventh leaf following: then the first letter of the next seventh line, and so on, till a suitable letter is found. Three days after this, or the sixth after the birth, corresponding to the chha!!î of the Hindûs, the family hold a feast, but entirely among themselves, at which they kill some animal. No outsider can partake of any part of this, and what is left must be buried. During this feast they shave the child's head.

The Muhammadans have, too, an astrological method of naming children. This is done by ascertaining what planet rules at the moment of birth. For this purpose they use two separate genethliacal tables, one for the day, 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., and one for the night 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. Between these periods each hour has a different ruling planet, and the child's name must begin with the first or last letter of the ruling planet's name. The planets are—

Sun	5 Atârid	Mercury
$\mathbf{M}$ oon	6 Mirrîkh	Mars
Saturn	7 Mushtarî	Jupiter.
	Moon	Moon 6 Mirrîkh

4 Zohra Venus

If we take between 10 and 11 a. m. on Wednesday we shall find that Mars, or Mirrîkh, is ruling, and we shall get as names Mîrân Bakhsh and Mariam, Khairu'llah and Khadîja. Again, taking between 9 and 10 p. m. on Thursday night we shall find the Moon, or Qamar, ruling, and so have as infantile names Qamaru'ddîn and Qulsûm, Rahîm Bakhsh and Rabîa. The Muhammadan genethliacal tables are as follows:—*

Like the Hindûs, the Musalmâns consider it a sin to name their children after themselves, though they do not carry the notion to ancestral names. The superstitious and humble in life, especially members of forcibly converted Hindû tribes, follow all the Hindû customs, even to calling in Brâhmans, holding Hindû festivals, giving opprobrious names from the same reasons and with the same customs as the Hindûs, and using janampatris; all of which show the slight inward hold their adopted religion has over them.

CHAPTER VIII.

Through the kindness of Miss G.L. West, in charge of the Christian Girls' Boarding School at Lüdiânâ, I have been enabled to add a few remarks on the growth of Christian nomenclature in Northern India.

Native Christian children are named nowafter three chief methods. The first is according to the current Indian Aryan system. Thus:—

Male Christians' Names.

'Abadîa	Iliâs	Prabhů Dâs
Chamb ā	Kâdû Ghos	Santû
Dînâ Nâth	Khemanta Rai	T ulsî
Hemantâ Rai	Maullá Bakhsh
Ibrâhîm	Munshi

Female Christians' Names.

Ahmadi	Krishn Dei	Rukhíá
Akko	Lachhmi	Sadâmanî Bânarjî
Amojan Nârâyan	Mariam	Satto Prîo Bânarjî
Aso	Mechal	Saurnon Prân
Beno Bânarjî	Nanhî!	Sukhiâ
Devakî	Phulmani	Tohfa
Jwâlî	Premî	Wazir Begam
Kadambînî Bânariî	Rahmat	5

It will be seen, however, later on that in these names of Christians the second names, where they exist, are looked on as surnames, in utter contradiction of the true native ideas and feeling. In the above names where Banarji and Ghos occur these last are properly caste names thrown in at the end of the true Proper Name in the usual way.

As will have been already observed, the lower and poorer natives have no second or complementary name as a rule. There is something of the sort to be observed among the low native Christians, who have frequently only one name of European origin, often Scriptural; the real Christian name in fact without a surname: as, to quote from the school lists—

-		Girls.
Anna	Eliza	Kittie	Margaret	Ruth
Clara	Emily	Lina	Martha	Susan
Dinah	Janie	Lizzie	Marv	_

Boys.

Eli Jacob Philip Samuel

In one case among the boys there is only one name, but it is a surname without a Christian name. This boy's name is simply Wilson. Another boy with a single name has a most remarkable one, viz., as printed, Kamerson. This looks very much like a corruption of the Hindû Kumar Sain.

The second system is to give the child a purely English name, in which the European fashion of Christian and surname is fully adopted. Thus:—

Girls

Adeline Dales	Lizzie Richardson	Mercy Patterson
Adenne Daies	Lizzie Kichardson
Agnes Richardson	Lovie Wylie	Nellie Wylie
Alice Patterson	Lydia Davis	Rachel Richardson
Annie Melvill	Martha Stuart	Susan Benton
Balm Muller	Mary Denison	Victoria Richardson
Caroline Randall	Mary Wylie
Jane Davis	Mattie Dales

The third and last system is by far the most interesting, and well worth record here, as showing the commencement of the growth of what will be eventually a system of native Christian nomenclature. This system mixes up the Indian and European methods of naming, but after the European manner. It is no doubt due to the feeling on the subject of names, which naturally dominates the European missionaries, to whom the existence of the native schools is due. In order to exhibit this feeling I cannot do better than quote Miss West's own words-"To give the final name of the father as a surname is becoming very common among native Christians, I suppose from much the same reasons as our ancestors adopted their second name from their different trades, &c." Natives, too, have more than one name, and even add their caste or tribal names to their proper names, but neither the second part of the proper name, nor the caste, nor the tribal name is ever used in the same way as the European surname. The notion of the surname is quite foreign to native ideas, and its use among the native Christians is very interesting and novel. It is to be observed that the final name of the father's name is the one chosen for this new surname. This will be usually the complementary addition to the proper name, and bence such names for native Christians as—

Maggie Singh Mary Sen Martha Sen Mariam Singh

But oftener it is the caste or tribal name, which thus becomes as it were a clan surname, somewhat on the model of the Scotch, Irish and Welsh clan surnames. Thus—

Janie Appâl Cecilia Chaturjî Maggie Ghos Joseph Appâl Edith Chaturjî Minnie Ghos

Ella Bânarjî Mollie Chaturjî

It is also obvious from some of these Christians' names, that the father, as might be expected from the lowly parentage of many of them, had but one name, and hence such queer mixtures, as—

Janie 'Abdu'llahAlice PûranEllen SâbirMartha BenîMercy PûranSarah Sâbir

Sometimes the whole of the father's name has been added, as-

Emily, 'Îsâ Dâs

Ernestina Tahil Singh

Esther P. C. Appâl (P. C.? for Prem Chand).

There are several cases of names of a similar growth to these, in which the parents had evidently been Christians with single Christian names. This Christian name has in subsequent generations been used as a surname, and hence the origin of a separate set of surnames for these people based on Christian names. Instances are—

Abigail Jonathan Charlotte Paul Harriett James
Agnes Benjamin Elizabeth John Lizzie Philip
Agnes James Ella Matthias Mary Anna Samuel

Amy Thomas Ellen Benjamin

An equally interesting and significant fact to be observed in this connection is the loss of the general use and meaning of a name, through which the two parts of the ordinary native name are used as Christian and surname without any reference to the original sense of the words. An instance of this is Ulfat Singh, the name of a female teacher in Miss West's School, where Ulfat is the Christian name and Singh the surname of the girl. But Ulfat Singh is a male name in actual use in ordinary native life with a common variant Ulfat Rai, and I never met with Singh as a female complement among natives when left to themselves.
